GENERAL LONGSTREET'S VISIT.

He Talks of the Blunders at Gettysburg, and Looks Upon the Battle of Atlanta.

A prominent gentleman of this city led Gen. Longstreet, yesterday morning, to talk about some of the great battles in which he participated. Among other statements of the General was one to the effect that he made his famous charge at Gettysburg against his own conviction. He advised against the attack, but Lee overruled him. He was for pulling up stakes and marching rapidly down the valley upon Washington, and he believed such a movement could have been successfully accomplished. He said two great mistakes were made in that battle, one by each of the commanding generals. First, Lee should not have attacked when he was so outnumbered, the entrenchment and the splendid condition of the Union forces. Secondly, when the Confederates began their celebrated retreat General Meade committed a great military blunder by not following the fleeing army and hurrying his forces upon their rear. Had he done so General Longstreet believes the Confederates would have crossed the Pennsylvania line without a single organized force.

During the day the General visited the cyclorama picture of the battle of Atlanta, and was much impressed with the remarkable detail and realism of that painting. After that he visited the Capitol building, which won from him frequent expressions of compliment. He and his fellow-travelers, the Messrs. Angier, will leave for the East this morning.

A Large Pension Granted.

James Patterson, who was a private in Company A, Twelfth Indiana Volunteers, and lives at Chesterfield, Madison county, has been granted a pension of $12.50 and placed on the rolls of the army here. He was drafted in 1861, and discharged in July, 1865. The pension was granted on account of disease of eyes, the result of snuff-taking near Raleigh, N. C., in the spring of 1862.

A MURDEROUS SOCIALIST.

Springing Upon His Benefactor, He Cuts and Stabs Him with Hatchet and Knife.

James P. Bruce, living at No. 538 Virginia avenue, where he has a bakery, was the victim of an unprovoked assault early yesterday morning, which nearly resulted in his death. The assailant is George Hacker, a German Socialist, who was employed by him. It has long been Mr. Bruce's custom to mix the sponge for his bread at 1 o'clock in the morning, and he was lighting the gas-jet in the bakery, at that hour, when Hacker attacked him, striking him over the head with the pole of a hatchet. Before the baker could recover from the blow he was struck several times in the face with the sharp edge of the blade, his assailant forcing him back against the wall. Hacker then drove a knife several times into Mr. Bruce's head and neck, and also attempted to use the hatchet again. The struggle continued several minutes. Mr. Bruce's cries brought his wife to his rescue, and she came just in time to save his life. Seeing that it was a life-and-death struggle, Mrs. Bruce ran up behind Hacker, and, seizing him around the neck with all her strength, attempted to tear him away from her husband. She had not recognized the assailant until she got hold of him, and then she cried, "George, what are you doing?" The assassin, Mrs. Bruce says, turned deadly pale, at being discovered, but made no answer. He did not release his grip on the baker and the two continued their struggle. Finally Mr. Bruce forced himself from Hacker's grasp, and giving him a push sent him falling to the floor. Hacker, in his fall knocked over the stove and Mr. Bruce fell over it, both being badly burned. Hacker quickly got to his feet, and not being able to get at Mr. Bruce because his wife stood between them, ran around a table, and with both hatchet and knife in hand again tried to reach his victim from the other side. Having nothing with which to defend herself, Mrs. Bruce pleaded with Hacker not to kill her husband. Recovering somewhat Mr. Bruce picked up a spade and Hacker, seeing that the baker now had a weapon, ran into the yard.

In getting out of the rear the murderous Socialist almost ran into the arms of two policemen, who, hearing the noise in the house, had been trying to get in. He went directly to his room, No. 3 Huron street, and putting on his overcoat, left. The lady with whom Hacker boarded says he did not go to bed at all Sunday night, but sat quietly in his room, where he was evidently plotting the murder. It seems that he had one to the bakery late at night, and secreting himself in the steam-chest, awaited the baker's coming. Dr. J. J. Garver, who attended Mr. Bruce, found he had eleven wounds, seven in the back of the neck, and five on the face, two in the face, one deep cut in the arm and a contusion at the base of the brain. He has a chance for recovery, but his physicians regard it as very slim.

The motive of the assassin, so far, has not been explained, but the crime is thought to be the result of socialist notions. Hacker came to work at the bakery from Germany many years ago, and has since then been a Socialist without money or friends. Mr. Bruce accidentally became acquainted with him, and out of pity gave him work. He clothed, fed and boarded him, and in time made him a good journeyman baker. Two years ago Hacker joined the Socialist Labor party, and since that time he has been something of a fanatic. All the members of the Bruce family agree in saying that a cross word never passed between Bruce and his assailant. Since the election the latter has been very loud in denouncing the government, and on several occasions his employer attempted, in a good-natured way, to give him advice. It is supposed that, on account of this mild opposition to his fanaticism, Hacker fostered a desire to kill the man who had benefited him. But attempts at murder were not new to him, as in September, 1887, he assaulted Joseph Streight, who it is reported, has since died in Brooklyn, N. Y., of the injuries he then received. Through the efforts of attorneys and the Socialist society Hacker was never indicted. The police could find no trace of him yesterday. The officers think he is being harbored by some of his socialist friends.

CULLINGS FROM THE COURTS.

Dora Belle Davis as a Rejected Sweetheart and Wronged Wife.

The call of the Circuit Court docket, yesterday, revealed that on July 5, 1887, Dora Belle Davis brought suit against John L. Wayt for $10,000 for alleged failure to keep a marriage contract. The suit was not called for trial, and in clearing the docket, yesterday, it was taken off. A few pages further on the woman appeared as plaintiff against Mr. Wayt in a suit for divorce. The woman had been pending in the court two cases against the same man, one for breach of marriage contract and the other for divorce. The divorce suit is still pending, and will be set down for trial in a few days.

The New County Commissioner. The new board of County Commissioners was organized yesterday. William O. Keval, the president of the board, whose term had expired, gave way to his successor, Jacob A. Emrich, of Wayne. James L. Thompson, being the senior member of the board, was elected president for the ensuing year. Many of Mr. Emrich's friends gathered at the office to congratulate him upon his advent into office, and there were cigars and champagne in abundance, furnished at his expense. Mr. Sahm, who has another year to serve, is thinking seriously of resigning. He has a great deal of private business demanding his attention. He says he will probably come to some conclusion in a day or two.

Libel Suit Dismissed. The suit for damages the Rev. Joseph A. Hughes, late prohibition candidate for Governor, brought against the Indianapolis Journal Company for alleged libel, was dismissed in the Circuit Court yesterday at the plaintiff's costs. Robert Denny, who appeared as attorney for Mr. Hughes, stated that he had filed the complaint at the request of the prohibition State committee, with Mr. Hughes' consent, and as the excitement of the campaign was over, he did not see what could be gained by pressing the matter.

Nothing as to Tansel's Whereabouts. Nothing has been heard from Louis Tansel, the would-be murderer from Boone county, who disappeared while his trial was in progress in the Criminal Court. A bench warrant for his arrest was sent to the sheriff of Boone Saturday, but last evening no return had been made on it. Believing that the prisoner did not intend to reappear in court, Judge Levin yesterday declared his bond forfeited, and discharged the jury that was hearing the case.

Asks for Damages. Another step in the litigation over the ownership of Bruce Place addition to the city was taken yesterday by Augustus B. Young, one of the property-holders, filing a complaint against James A. and John W. Bruce, for $1,000 damages. He alleged that the suit brought by the Bruces, last week, for the possession of all the property in the addition is for the purpose of annoying, harassing and damaging persons who have titles to lots in the addition.

A Challenged Voter's Grievance. Douglas Whitaker, of the Thirteenth ward, who alleges that he was prevented from voting at the recent election, has brought another suit for damages. The defendant this time is Millard F. Connett. Mr. Whitaker alleges that Connett challenged his vote, and thereby prevented him from voting. The amount demanded is $1,000.

Will Wait for Grand Jury Action. John Richardson, arrested for stealing $20 from Edward Pepper, was held for grand jury action by Mayor Denny yesterday morning. Samuel DeWitt, charged with stealing a gold watch from a gentleman at the Museum, was also sent to the grand jury.

She Drove Him from the House.

Albert E. Pierson wants a divorce from his wife, Jennie Pierson, who lives at No. 99 North New Jersey street. He alleges cruel treatment, and says he was driven away from home by her. This is the basis of a suit Pierson filed yesterday.

Taken to Hendricks County.

The suit of Cyrus F. McNut & Son against John E. Sullivan, for attorney's fees, arising from their services in behalf of defendant in the tally-sheet trials, has been taken to Hendricks county on a change of venue.

Federal Grand Jury.

The federal grand jury will resume its work this morning, and it is thought as the district attorney's miscellaneous docket has been cleared, that the jurors will begin investigating violations of the election laws.

The Court Record.

Room 1—Hon. N. B. Taylor, Judge. Mima Gamble vs. Omer Gamble et al.; for support. Cause dismissed.

E. W. Mark vs. Thos. Harrington; mechanic's lien. Judgment for plaintiff for $30 and attorney's fees.

Mary E. Patterson vs. Wm. L. Armstrong et al.; partition. Partition granted.

Charley Robinson vs. Geo. Robinson; divorce; adultery and cruel treatment. Granted to plaintiff.

Martha E. vs. Jas. H. Coffman; divorce. On trial by jury.

Room 2—Hon. D. W. Howe, Judge. George L. Williams vs. Joseph K. Sharpe, et al.; no. Judgment for plaintiff for $153.51.

Robert S. Hobbs & Co. vs. James B. Hardy, et al.; no. Dismissed.

Alice Sherrill vs. Leonard Sherrill; divorce. Granted on ground of cruel treatment.

Room 3—Hon. D. W. Howe, Judge. William A. Young et al. vs. John Bailey et al.; complaint to foreclose mechanic's lien. Demand, $900.

Douglas Whitaker vs. Millard F. Connett; complaint for damages. Demand, $1,000.

Albert E. Pierson vs. Jennie Pierson; complaint for divorce. Allegation, cruel treatment and drunkenness.

Richard H. McCray vs. James H. Baldwin; complaint to foreclose lien on real estate. Demand, $200.

Augustus B. Young et al. vs. James H. Bruce and John W. Bruce; complaint to recover damages for injury to real estate and to quiet title. Demand, $1,000.

GENERAL TERM.

The Superior Court met in general term yesterday morning and the following decisions were handed down:

1040. Henry E. Gay vs. Samuel F. Aldridge et al. Appeal dismissed.

1047. Albert Dillingham et al. vs. R. Thomas Parker. Judgment special term reversed.

1057. George B. Vander, assignee, vs. Catherine Dantzer et al. Affirmed. Appeal taken.

1063. The Marmet Company vs. George F. Brennan. Affirmed. Appeal taken.

1070. Sophia Greenwald vs. Wm. A. Tipton. Affirmed. Appeal taken.

1073. Bridget O'Reilly vs. James O'Shea. Appeal dismissed.

FRUITS AND FLOWERS.

Discussions About Orchards and Gardens by the State Horticultural Society.

The twenty-eighth annual session of the Indiana Horticultural Society begins to-day, and its pleasant rooms in the Capitol building and the audience-room of the Board of Agriculture, adjoining, were being put in order yesterday for the reception. President Furnas and Secretary Hobbs, of the society, were arranging the first installments of the floral exhibits in cases for inspection, and the latter, in reply to questions by the Journal reporter, spoke encouragingly of the prospects of the coming season. "We have over one hundred members," he said, "and I think we shall have over seventy-five in attendance on this meeting. Our display of fruit is likely to be creditable, that of apples particularly so. Of course, our sessions are more particularly interesting to fruit-growers, but I should think a considerable portion of our proceedings would be of interest to the general public, and there is an address on our programme this year that ought to be especially interesting to city people who have to look after the ornamentation of the parks and some of whom have their own lawns to decorate. I refer to the paper on landscape gardening, which will be presented during the session by the landscape gardener of the State University, an exceedingly competent man in his profession. It is likely that to-morrow will be taken up with the addresses of officers, reports of committees and fresh assignments for committee work, but after that we shall be ready for discussion of the various topics heretofore printed as part of our programme, and will be glad to have those interested in them attend our sessions."

AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE—HERMANN.

There was a continuous succession of laughter and exclamations of wonder at the Grand Opera house, last night, where Professor Hermann, the most skillful and mystifying of the aeromancers, began a limited engagement. The audience filled the theater, and the entertainment was of such a character as to deserve the kindly acceptance of the audience, and another half hour of special acts concluded the performance, which, throughout, was original and most entertaining. The stage settings, the costumes, the scenery and all the other appointments were rich and varied. To-night, Hermann will give a change of bill, presenting a new series of things, the nature of his mysteries, "Black Art," and to-morrow night there will be another change, with his expose of bogus spiritualism.

PARK—"SCARLET IX."

The "Scarlet IX," which was seen for the first time in this city at the Park Theatre, yesterday, is a comedy-drama of the sensational order which is likely to prove a very strong attraction there. The scene of the play is located in Mexico, and the story is one that has considerable interest in itself, while the situations are exciting and, in one or two cases, very dramatic. As a relief from this, specialties and musical features are introduced at intervals, and these help to make the performance a decided "go." There were very large audiences both afternoon and evening, and much laughter and vociferous applause over the performance. The piece is better than the ordinary sensational play, and the company present it in good shape. The chief parts are taken by Mr. James Moss, who is a character comedian of ability, and by a Genetive Louise Britt, an intelligent and attractive actress. "Scarlet IX" will run all week.

NOTES. They have all sorts of "big" things at the Eden Theatre, which is the "Big" Eden, the colored woman, and a big snake—in fact, the biggest one ever seen here—besides other new features.

W. W. Tillotson's Merry Comedy Company will meet in its first appearance at the Grand Opera-house for three nights, commencing next Monday evening, with a matinee on Wednesday, in the latest musical comedy success "Zigzag."

At the box office of English's this morning will begin the advance sale of seats for the engagement of the popular comedians Barry and Fay, Thursday night and the rest of the week. "McKenna's Follies," which they will present, is full of hilarity and music.

To-morrow evening, at Tomlinson Hall, the concert company, which embraces such artists as Emma Juch, Teresa Carreno, Hope Glenn and Leopold Lichtberg, will give their appearance here of the season. No better musical entertainment has ever been promised in this city than this company is capable of giving. The event will be quite a small affair.

Col. Hogeland's Work.

Col. Hogeland spent Saturday night and part of Sunday at Plainfield, where he talked three times to the 500 boys in the Reform School. Saturday evening in the chapel of that institution he opened the way for his Sunday lectures which were given in the morning and afternoon. He was very favorably impressed with the discipline of the school, while the attention of a large congregation made up from the several churches there in the interest of the National Boy's Life Society, which they will present, is full of hilarity and music.

FRUIT PRESERVERS' INTERESTS.

Increased Production and Sharp Competition Bring About a Formidable Pool.

Some indications of a fruit-preserving trust in this city have given currency to that statement that the Van Camp Packing Company had absorbed two or three small establishments of the kind, and that it was the purpose to extend the operations of the combination until it could financially control a large part of the preserving business. When asked about the matter yesterday, the gentlemen interested were not very liberal in giving information, but enough was obtained to show the existence of a pool. "There are causes," said a fruit preserver, "which have been operating for several years in our business which have added its vitality to an alarming extent. Fruit preserving as a farming specialty has increased wonderfully, so that the price of fruit has at last run down to almost nothing. Under such circumstances the people preserve very large quantities of fruit themselves, at nominal cost, and the effect has been to decrease the price of manufactured goods steadily at the rate of about 15 cents per pound each year. For the last five years, and the result is that the identical article of preserves can be bought to-day for 6 cents per pound that we sold in 1881 for 15 cents. This has made the economically sound fruit crop have given the business such a serious blow as to threaten its very existence, and prices are now held down to a point where there is scarcely any margin whatever, in order to secure any consumption of the goods. Three of the preservers of this city decided to pool their issues, and save, out of superfluous running expenses, enough to create a small margin at the retail prices, and prevent further cutting on the part of each firm from running up all out of business. By this arrangement our work for this season will be done by the Frank Van Camp, who now manages the Van Camp Company, but of course our machinery is still in position and perfect order here and the wheels ready to turn at any moment, should this arrangement for manufacturing our goods not prove as advantageous as we hope it will."

A Journal reporter in a talk with another preserver who belongs to the pool was told that the companies and firms entering the combination, including his own, still continued their office management as before, this being necessary to settle up business of past seasons and deal with old customers, but that every pound of goods in which they were concerned was being made by the Van Camps under a special agreement for the work. "It is the intention to keep prices from going any lower than at present, though, of course, there are outside firms from other cities who, not being covered by anything, will continue to cut prices beyond reason at every opportunity."

"Are all the firms making preserves here in the combination?"

"All but one at the present time, and it is keeping prices all right, which amounts to the same effect."

The reporter saw a member of the firm expected to be interviewed. It is thought that the firm contemplates joining the combination. The new company making all the goods here is named The Van Camp Preserving Company, and the amount of capital controlled by the combination is said to be considerable, probably as high as $300,000.

The Day at General Harrison's.

General Harrison had a quiet day yesterday and was at work in his library most of the time. Gen. James Longstreet, of Georgia, accompanied by Hon. E. A. Angier, of Atlanta, and E. C. Atkins, of this city, were among the callers in the afternoon, and the President-elect conferred a half hour or longer with the ex-Confederate soldier and his friends. Yesterday evening Gen. Harrison dined at the residence of Mr. Atkins. The other guests were General Longstreet, E. A. Angier, and together with Dr. Wilson and half a dozen other Indianapolis gentlemen.

Malignity of Boys.

Two fires, early last evening, did not cause a loss of more than $300 altogether. Both came from the malignity of boys, the first being the burning of a load of hay, on Broadway, near Tenth street, while the second was a fire in the cellar of a house on Meridian street, near Fifth street, owned by Mr. O'Connor.

Mr. Jones's Postoffice.

Thomas Schooley, of Gallaudet, received on Dec. 1, fifteen letters and postal-cards, all mailed in this city between the 24th of October and 5th of November. Gallaudet is just nine miles from the city.

SHREWSBURY

TOMATOKETCHUP

PLEASE NOTICE

Shrewsbury Tomatoketchup is the pure expressed Fruit of the Red Apple Tomato, originally from the high table lands of South America, a variety of Tomato first brought to Shrewsbury, New Jersey, where by careful selection of seed and fine culture it has been brought to great perfection.

The fruit is allowed to thoroughly ripen on the vines before being picked. It is then crushed and carefully prepared so as not to injure the color or in any way tend to dissipate its natural flavor and spicy aroma.

Shrewsbury Tomatoketchup is put up in full pints only, packed two dozen in a case, and is sold at the stores of H. H. LEE at 25 cts. a bottle, $2.75 a dozen.
